Our History

The history of Breads Unlimited begins on Georgia Avenue in Washington DC when in 1949 George Raab bought the New Yorker Bakery. The New Yorker Bakery was an icon in Washington DC in the 1930's and 1940's and Raab was determined to continue its rich tradition of old fashioned pastries, breads and treats. The New Yorker staff was joined by Steve Raab, George's son, in 1965 and continued to operate as a Washington DC landmark until the 1980's.

Expanding the business in 1981, Steve opened Breads Unlimited in Bethesda, Maryland operating with the same recipes and sense of tradition that made the New Yorker Bakery a hit with Washingtonians.

The New Yorker Bakery reopened in 1989 in Silver Spring Maryland and then relocated back to Georgia Avenue after 35 years! The New Yorker now handles the wholesale breads operation of Breads Unlimited.

Today the Raab and Breads Unlimited families continue to provide traditional breads and pastries.
